Disney team of heroes app

View full profile Settings Newsletter Newsletter Community Sign Out Web: We've covered a lot of productivity apps for small groups and teams, but Groupiful is a new web app that runs the line between offering features useful for an individual trying to get their family on the same page or renovating their home, and small start teams looking to organize work. We talk a lot about personal productivity tools at Lifehacker, but sometimes you're not the only one... Read moreGroupiful offers a clean, open interface that gives you a quick view of the work and activities you have to deal with downtown, your upcoming events and recently uploaded or accessed files on the right, and your recent notes and personal to-do tasks on the left. You can create different groups to keep your privacy separate from your business one, or to separate out the projects you're working on. That way the family vacation you're working on doesn't get in the way of the bedroom remodel you're trying to manage. The activity stream in the center is where you see all your activities, and the activities of the other people you're working with. If you have friends or family members working on the same event or project with you, you'll see the things they're doing, you can comment on them, star them, and so on. They can do the same from their point of view. By default, your dashboard shows you all your groups and all tasks — click any group to see only relevant updates for that project. Groupiful does a great job of being more than an easy-to-do list with sharing options, but less than a bulky, massive CRM tool that is clearly only useful to people in large companies. If you're on a small team and need to work together, or if you just want to bring some order to your household, volunteer group or community association, it's definitely worth a look. Groupiful is free for anyone who needs to join or create up to 10 groups of up to 10 users each, which we think is more than enough for most people. If you need more users or more storage, premium plans are available. G/O Media can get a commissionGroupiful December 15, 2015 4 min read This story originally appeared on Lewis Howe's The Hero's Journey can take place on a battlefield or in a booth. We can live it out in the midst of public cries or in silent arches between our ears. The demons we duel are always the same. They are our own fears of becoming who we are. No one who has ever lived – or ever will – has a journey like ours. And yet our journey is universal. It's every woman's and every man's. – Steven PressfieldDid you know you're the hero of your own story? Live life behind your eyes, you are the main character, and you are the author. Some might say that you are co-authors with destiny or with your higher power. You may have understood this at one point in your life and circumstances got in the way of your ability to clearly you can still captain your own ship. You see, on every hero or heroine's journey, they get lost. The hero almost dies. The hero wants to give up. It's an important part of the journey, actually. If you are lucky, you will find your way back quickly, or after some time. Some people get lost for so long that they forget what it was like to be themselves. You know those—people who once walked in their full force but now saw under the weight of their disappointments and losses. Sometimes the pain in life can seem too much to bear, and there are those among us who suffer harder, perhaps even feel deeper. Pain is inevitable, but the suffering—the story we tell about the pain—is voluntary. We are all heroes and heroines – either we respond to the call of our highest self or not. We will most likely get lost when we don't respond, and we'll probably find our purpose when we do. It's just part of the process. Sam Raimi said: When we read stories about heroes, we identify with them. We'll take the trip with them. We see the obstacles almost overcome them. We see how they grow as human beings or gain qualities or show great qualities of strength and courage and with them we grow in some small way. We all have a unique gift that strives to come to life in us, and that is the call. After the call is answered, then comes initiation. The initiation we go through includes the tests, leaps of faith, the steps we need to take to get to the work we are supposed to do. This manifests itself in the form of something risky that we wish to win or accomplish. If we desire love and romance, we must take a chance to be hurt and trust the process of the relationship. If we start a business, we have to take one step at a time towards our vision often of failure after failure comes before success. During initiation, you will need to persevere. When you persevere and you don't give up, you will show up after growing, stretched and expanding. You will have found something valuable and unique to give to the world. Being the hero of your own story means stepping back from the overwhelm of every moment and seeing that every trip has ebb and flow, up and down. Don't wait for someone to save you. Save yourself. Step into your power and become the hero or heroine of your own life. Subscribe to iTunes, Stitcher Radio or TuneIn Disney is quite the big media property these days. They own ABC, ESPN, Marvel, Lucasfilm, and, soon, Fox. That means there are a lot of ways to interact with Disney stuff. But we think people looking for Disney apps want more classic Disney characters and experiences. We can definitely help with that. Disney is, again, massive. They have movies, TV shows and music in lots of genres. We can help you find what you are looking for. Here are the best Disney apps for Android.Disney +Disney+DisneyNowFANDOMiHeartRadio FamilyInternet TV (link to Hulu)Movies AnywhereMy Disney ExperienceRedditOfficial Disney appsYouTubeDisney +Price: Free trial / $6.99 per month / $12.99 per monthDisney + is the Disney app release in recent recent It features a bunch of Disney shows and movies along with content from Disney-owned properties (such as The Simpsons) and some original content like The Mandalorian. It's a huge success for Disney so far and it's the obvious choice for a list like this. Also, you can get Hulu, Disney+, and ESPN+ for $12.99 and it's honestly the best in streaming right now. This is easily the best Disney app. DisneyNowPrice: Free with TV subscriber loginDisneyNow is Disney's current streaming service. You log on to the service with your existing TV cable provider info and get access to a bunch of Disney TV content. It includes children's shows, cartoons and live action stuff, classic and new Disney characters, and even Radio Disney. Disney+ is an excellent streaming service, but you still get more day-to-day Disney content from this than you do from Disney+ and this still integrates with your cable PROVIDER if you still have one. Fandom by WikiaPrice: Free with adsFandom by Wikia is a community of enthusiasts who create these small wiki pages for different media properties. It used to be a collection of different fandoms but it's now a single app with each topic available. The app generally provides information about characters, movies, TV shows and even some games. It's a neat way to learn a little trivia about basically any Disney movie, show or character. Of course, it's a bit of a niche product. Trivia buffs should definitely try this one.iHeartRadio FamilyPrice: Free/$9.99 per monthThere are a few different versions of iHeartRadio. But for Disney stuff, we recommend iHeartRadio Family. It has 80 stations with family-friendly music from a bunch of popular children's shows and movies. Of course, it contains lots of Disney content. You can join a station dedicated to Disney princess songs or just look up the standard Radio Disney for a great mix of music from Disney. Of course, the full version has all these stations as well so current fans of iHeartRadio just need to look up the search button to find these stations. The premium version adds unlimited jumps and a bunch of other features equal. Internet TV (Sling TV, Hulu, DirecTV Now, etc)Price: Free / VariesIt is easier (and cheaper) to watch TV than ever before. TV services like Hulu, Sling TV, YouTube TV, PlayStation Vue and DirecTV Now all have a lot of excellent kid-friendly content. Consequently, they also all have access to the Disney Channel along with a bunch of back-logged Disney content. For example, on Hulu, if you subscribe to the live TV service, you get the Disney Channel, but also access to movies like Pocahontas. The amount of Disney content per streaming service varies, but you can at least get the actual channel on all of them. Honestly, this is probably better than cable for Disney stuff because you get these on-demand titles as long as you subscribe to the live TV service. Also Disney a Disney+, ESPN+ and Hulu subscription bundle for a pretty pretty price here. Movies AnywherePrice: Free/Movie prices varyMovies Anywhere is probably the best app for movies on Google Play. It's not its own standalone streaming service. It's actually a collection of other movie streaming services. You sign in with your iTunes, Amazon, Vudu, or Google Play. All movies you've purchased on all these services are now available in one place. The service has over 7,500 movies and which, of course, includes lots of Disney movies along with virtually every Marvel and Star Wars movie as well. Disney is likely to have all these movies on Disney+ when it comes out. Until then, this is probably the best place to actually buy a Disney movie and watch it. The app is sometimes buggy, but it's otherwise pretty good. It also comes with Chromecast support. My Disney Experience / DisneylandPrice: FreeDisneyland and Disney World are two of the most popular resorts in the world. They also have both official apps. The My Disney Experience app focuses primarily on Disney World. You can use it to plan your vacation, as an interactive map of the park, and you can even buy your tickets and merch there. The Disneyland app is much the same. The app displays information such as estimated waiting times, browser restaurant menus, and interacts with the park's map. There are apps for all Disney parks individually, including those in Paris, Hong Kong and Shanghai. Those on their way to Disney World or Disneyland should definitely have these programs at hand. RedditPrice: Free/$3.99 per month/$29.99 per yearReddit is great for a lot of fan bases and Disney fans are no exception. The site has dozens of subreddits for Marvel properties, Star Wars movies, and, of course, classic Disney properties as well. You can talk to other people who like the things that you like and post things that you care about. The Reddit app keeps everything under moderate control, although people who haven't used Reddit before may have trouble acclimatizing at first. In any case, this is a great way to read out news about Star Wars, Marvel, or other Disney properties and discuss these things with other fans. The premium subscription removes advertising and gives you some additional features as well. Official Disney appsPrice: Free (usually)We've said it over and over again that Disney is a huge company. As it turns out, there are a variety of official Disney apps for most of these properties. Examples include the official Star Wars app, the official Marvel app, the ESPN app, the ABC's official app, and the list goes on and on. These official apps are among the best ways to interact with Disney's massive list of media companies. For example, you can watch ABC's programming on the ABC app or read about the latest Star Wars news in the Star Wars app. You can even read old Marvel comics in the Marvel app. It really depends on the type of content each property makes, but that's all Disney.YouTubePrice: Free /$12.99 per månedYouTube månedYouTube an excellent, albeit obvious, choice for a great Disney app. You can find basically every Disney song ever made there along with a ton of clips and memes from various movies and TV shows. It's also the place to see trailers for upcoming movies or shows, reviews of various toys or games, and pretty much anything else you can think of. Disney has an official VEVO channel with over 11 million subscribers. But, again, you probably already knew all this so this part of the list is really just some confirmation bias. Yes, YouTube is among the best apps for Disney fans. You can optionally pay $12.99 per month to remove ads, download videos for offline use, and you'll get some other features. If we missed some great Disney apps for Android, tell us about them in the comments! You can also click here to check out our latest Android app and playlists! Lists!
